

When on holiday, it is often the ideal time to reflect from afar on the trajectory of your life and where you want to go on your return.

Here are some good thought experiments:

What is my biggest achievement since my last holiday?

Am I happy with the direction my life is going professionally and personally?

What is the next meaningful goal I would like to hit in the next 6-12 months?

What are three things I can do immediately on my return to get the ball rolling in that direction?

