2. Put a figure of time after each one depending on what you spend completing each.

☐ Total hours

3. Put a stroke through the ones which you enjoy doing.

4. Now consider the ones that remain and categorise them, e.g. cleaning, shopping, gardening etc.

_____	_____
_____	_____
_____	_____
_____	_____

5. Calculate hours spent per category.

6. Ask yourself if you would like to begin outsourcing one of them? Remember that sometimes it pays to outsource tasks as it can free your time up for more rejuvenation, more time for your best work and also provides employment for another, etc.

7. Now ask yourself if there are services providing what you are looking. For e.g. house cleaners, home delivery groceries, meal services, etc.
8. If not, then you might consider a personalised ad stating the number of hours to be worked, the times when the work would take place and how much you are willing to pay.
9. You can always hire on a trial period to see if it works for you and once you are satisfied consider making a more long-term commitment. Be as clear as possible as to your expectations before working with someone and it is always a good idea to let them know it's a trial period first.
